This is in reference to your application for correction of your naval record pursuant to the provisions of 10 USC 1552.

A three-member panel of the Board for Correction of Naval Records, sitting in executive session, considered your application on 20 January 2015. Your allegations of error and injustice were reviewed in accordance with administrative regulations and procedures applicable to the proceedings of this Board. Documentary material considered by the Board consisted of your application, together with all material submitted in support thereof, your naval record and applicable statutes, regulations and policies. In addition, the Board considered the advisory opinion furnished by HQMC memo 7220 MPO of 21 Oct 14, a copy of which is attached.

After careful and conscientious consideration of the entire record, the Board found that the evidence submitted was insufficient to establish the existence of probable material error or injustice. In making this determination, the Board concurred with the comments contained in the advisory opinion. The Post-9/11 Veterans Education Assistance Act (Post-9/11 GI Bill, Public Law 110-252) was signed into law on 30 June 2008 and became effective on 1 August 2009. General descriptions of the essential components of the new law were widely available beginning in summer 2008 and specific implementing guidance was published in the summer of 2009.

Under the governing regulations, to be eligible to transfer benefits, a member must be on active duty or in the selective reserve at the time of the election to transfer. This is an important feature of the law because the transferability provisions are intended as an incentive vice a benefit. Members who are retired are not eligible to transfer their education benefits.

Your application claims, "I was given less than a month noticed that I was being separated for the Marine Corps in Feb 2013. I was medically separated with 100% service connected disability." You further claim that "I attended Tap and Tamps in Camp Pendleton and was told that I could transfer my benefits anytime I wanted even after leaving the armed forces." The Board found you have provided no proof to back up your claim that you were given misleading information on when you could transfer your benefits. The Board further found that though you were medically discharged, you did not have the minimum service requirements to transfer your Post-9/11 GI Bill to your dependents. You did not have 10 years of service prior to your medical discharge. Therefore, in the Board's view, you are not entitled to transfer benefits and no change to your record is warranted. Accordingly, your application has been denied. The names and votes of the members of the panel will be furnished upon request.

It is regretted that the circumstances of your case are such that favorable action cannot be taken. You are entitled to have the Board reconsider its decision upon submission of new evidence within one year from the date of the Board's decision. New evidence is evidence not previously considered by the Board prior to making its decision in this case. In this regard, it is important to keep in mind that a presumption of regularity attaches to all official records. Consequently, when applying for a correction of an official naval record, the burden is on the applicant to demonstrate the existence of probable material error or injustice.

Sincerely,

ROBERT J. O'NEILL
Executive Director
