

With regard to the inference that your medical issues precluded you from participating in a PFT or CFT, and therefore entitled you to involuntary separation pay, the Board resolved that limited duty alone does not support a finding for involuntary separation from the Marine Corps. The Board noted that if you suffered a service-connected disability or condition prior to your discharge, a Medical Board with subsequent Disability Evaluation Processing may have been more appropriate. The Board stated that detailed information regarding the nature of your medical condition or disability and its relation to your alleged involuntary separation is required to assess your request for relief.

You are entitled to have the Board reconsider its decision upon submission of new matters, which will require you to complete and submit a new DD Form 149. New matters are those not previously presented to or considered by the Board. In this regard, it is important to keep in mind that a presumption of regularity attaches to all official records. Consequently, when applying for a correction of an official naval record, the burden is on the applicant to demonstrate the existence of probable material error or injustice.

Sincerely,
