Dear Petitioner:

This is in reference to your application for correction of your naval record pursuant to Section 1552 of Title 10, United States Code. After careful and conscientious consideration of relevant portions of your naval record and your application, the Board for Correction of Naval Records (Board) found the evidence submitted insufficient to establish the existence of probable material error or injustice. Consequently, your application has been denied.

Although your application was not filed in a timely manner, the Board found it in the interest of justice to waive the statute of limitations and consider your case on its merits. A three-member panel of the Board, sitting in executive session, considered your application on 3 February 2025. The names and votes of the panel members will be furnished upon request. Your allegations of error and injustice were reviewed in accordance with administrative regulations and procedures applicable to the proceedings of this Board. Documentary material considered by the Board consisted of your application together with all material submitted in support thereof, relevant portions of your naval record, and applicable statutes, regulations, and policies, to include the 25 July 2018 guidance from the Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness regarding equity, injustice, or clemency determinations (Wilkie Memo).

Regarding your request for a personal appearance, the Board determined that a personal appearance with or without counsel will not materially add to their understanding of the issue(s) involved. Therefore, the Board determined that a personal appearance was not necessary and considered your case based on the evidence of record.

You enlisted in the Navy and began a period of active service on 2 December 1985. On 4 December 1986, you underwent a mental health evaluation due to your difficulty sleeping and were diagnosed with a phase of life problem. On 19 July 1988, received non-judicial punishment (NJP) for unauthorized absence (UA) from your appointed place of duty. On 29 August 1988, you were counseled regarding your retention in naval service despite diagnosis of schizoid personality disorder as evidence by a psychiatric evaluation and UA. On 10 October 1988, you pleaded guilty in civilian court to driving while impaired and operating a motor vehicle down the wrong direction on a dual lane roadway. On 19 October 1988, you received your second NJP for assault. On 20 October 1988, you submitted a request to be discharge from the Navy. Subsequently, you were notified of the initiation of administrative separation proceedings by reason misconduct due the commission of a serious offense and a civil conviction. You waived your right to a hearing of your case before an administrative discharge board and your commanding officer recommended your separation from naval service with an Other Than Honorable (OTH) character of service. The separation authority approved the recommendation directed your discharge by reason of misconduct due to the commission of a serious offense. On 9 January 1989, you were so discharged.

The Board carefully considered all potentially mitigating factors to determine whether the interests of justice warrant relief in your case in accordance with the Wilkie Memo. These included, but were not limited to, your desire to upgrade your characterization of service and contentions that you were faced with custody challenges during your service, you developed a sleep disorder due to your work schedule, you are not sure why you received the type of discharge, and you feel your family care plan failed you. For purposes of clemency and equity consideration, the Board noted you did not provide documentation describing post-service accomplishments or advocacy letters.

After thorough review, the Board concluded your potentially mitigating factors were insufficient to warrant relief. Specifically, the Board determined that your misconduct, as evidenced by your NJPs and civil conviction, outweighed these mitigating factors. In making this finding, the Board considered the seriousness of your misconduct and found that your conduct showed a complete disregard for military authority and regulations. The Board observed you were given multiple opportunities to correct your conduct deficiencies but chose to continue to commit misconduct, which led to your OTH discharge. Your conduct not only showed a pattern of misconduct but was sufficiently pervasive and serious to negatively affect the good order and discipline of your command. Finally, the Board observed that you provided no evidence, other than your statement, to substantiate your contentions. Regardless, the Board was not persuaded that a nexus exists between your family issues and your misconduct.

As a result, the Board determined that there was no impropriety or inequity in your discharge and concluded that your misconduct and disregard for good order and discipline clearly merited your discharge. Even in light of the Wilkie Memo and reviewing the record holistically, the Board did not find evidence of an error or injustice that warrants granting you the relief you requested or granting relief as a matter of clemency or equity. Accordingly, given the totality of the circumstances, the Board determined that your request does not merit relief.

You are entitled to have the Board reconsider its decision upon submission of new matters, which will require you to complete and submit a new DD Form 149. New matters are those not previously presented to or considered by the Board. In this regard, it is important to keep in mind that a presumption of regularity attaches to all official records. Consequently, when applying for a correction of an official naval record, the burden is on the applicant to demonstrate the existence of probable material error or injustice.

Sincerely,

2/12/2025
